City Council At-Large

Clarissa J. Williams was first elected to City Council in 2021, and is now serving her first term as City Council At-Large.

Clarissa was born and raised on the Navajo Nation reservation in Arizona and first came to Salt Lake with her family in 2003 to attend the University of Utah. After completion, with great job opportunities and loving the mountains, they decided to stay and make South Salt Lake their home.

Having a career focus as an Analytical Chemist and a parent, she first got involved in city issues while dealing with a neighbor in close proximity who was seemingly involved in criminal behavior. After reaching out to the SSLPD, she started attending city meetings, and became aware of the challenges they were facing, including being understaffed. Clarissa has since become a strong advocate for the SSLPD/FD, a member of the SSL planning commission, and regularly attends neighborhood watch and City Council meetings.

Clarissa is happily married and lives in SSL with her husband and son. In her free time, she enjoys watching baseball, and spending time with her family.
